Project Description

- a webzine provided for and from AEC students and teachers.
- a medium that contains students' -teachers' work and articles. It is a collaborative work using ITC.
- learning media through compositions for students (13-18 years old) and teachers.
- Getting the students, the opportunity to act and be journalists, writing and publishing their work on the net.
- We also hope that the articles will result in an interaction through comments and analyzing.
- To further improvement this we will give the opportunity to grade each article and maybe make a small comment to further increase the feedback.
- A place to publish the students' articles.

Rationale for the Project

- Foster better friendship, brotherhood and understanding among all the participating countries.
- Increase awareness on the various issues and concerns facing the youth of today.
- Enhance students' language skills, analytical thinking, syntheses, observations, and research skills.

- Hopefully the work itself, writing the article will involve some kind of research and thereby giving the author a deeper understanding about the subject.
- Further hone the students' skills in information technology communication (ITC).
- Make the students more creative, expressive, innovative, open minded, and able to take initiative.
- The student is given, if successful, a higher self-esteem, feedback from around the world and the opportunity to be read by people all over the world.
- Improve Asia-Europe students' teamwork, management, and leadership skills.
